When developing more complex models it is often desirable to report a p-value for the model as a whole as well as an R-square for the model.. p-values for models. The p-value for a model determines the significance of the model compared with a null model. For a linear model, the null model is defined as the dependent variable being equal to its mean.

In R, you add lines to a plot in a very similar way to adding points, except that you use the `lines()` function to achieve this. But first, use a bit of R magic to create a trend line through the data, called a regression model. You use the `lm()` function to estimate a linear [...]

The  $R^2$  value is a measure of how close our data are to the linear regression model.  $R^2$  values are always between 0 and 1; numbers closer to 1 represent well-fitting models.  $R^2$  always increases as more variables are included in the model, and so adjusted  $R^2$  is included to account for the number of independent variables used to make the model ...
